

News > Queensland > Warwick

Leaders adapt to changes at East

WARWICK East State School has had several changes in its leadership teams this year.

less than 2 min read May 5, 2015 - 5:00AM Warwick Daily News

AA

CAPTAINS: School and house captains at Warwick East State School: (front, from left) Henry Sun, Emma O'Donovan, Pierce Johnson, Madeleine Lambert; (back) Jessica Mauch, Eli Palmer, principal Marina Clarke, Jada Wright and Jack Bergemann. Picture: Naturalite Studio

WARWICK East State School has had several changes in its leadership teams this year.

School captains, sport captains and student council leaders have all taken up duties since the start of the school year.

Students meet regularly to discuss school business, including positive behaviours, organising or events and fundraising and areas of development within the school.

Leaders meet with members of staff to develop ideas.

Student leaders also run the weekly parade and events such as the recent Anzac commemorations at the school.

Warwick East now has its first female principal, Ms Marina Clarke.

The new head of special education services is Tracey Mekitarian.

Miss Alicia McMillan has the dual role of deputy principal and master teacher.

P&C executives for 2015 are: President Sharon Nicholson, vice-president Judy McIlroy, treasurer - Madonna Dwan and secretary Tracey Shatte.

School leaders are highly valued at Warwick East State School as we see it as essential for all the teams to work together to reach the strategic goals of state schooling: Successful learners, great people, engaged partners and high standards.

SPONSORED

Celebrity hair trends 2025: DIY edition

Read next

Avoid scams and rip-offs!
BitDefender - Products

